The new Airbus A350:

More comfort on the connection between Frankfurt and Shanghai!

Air China is once more going to upgrade its fleet for flights between Germany and China:

From December 1st on, the daily connection between Frankfurt and Shanghai (CA936/CA935) will be served by a new Airbus A350 aircraft.

The capacities on this connection will be expanded significantly:

In total there are 32 seats in Business Class, 24 in Premium Economy and 269 in Economy Class. The refined interior satisfies long-haul travelers' needs to a maximum extent and makes the journey even more relaxing. Lie-flat seats in Business class guarantee a comfortable flight experience, and in all service classes each seat is equipped with a rich individual inflight entertainment program.

The Airbus A350 is currently the most modern twin-engine jet airliner worldwide. It blends low fuel consumption with minimum noise emissions, and meets highest actual ecological standards regarding its energy consumption and efficiency.
